

OCTOBER 2021_2 MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

MODELING & SIMULATION

ONEIL | Miamisburg, OH | Nontraditional

POC: Christopher Mofield | Email | Website | LinkedIn

Q: What do you consider your organization's differentiator?

A: ONEIL has been developing product support information for over 70 years. This rich history has allowed our organization to learn many key lessons in how to effectively communicate complex technical concepts to users and maintainers of varying skill levels. Most of our technical writers were users of the information we create, which gives them a unique perspective on communicating with other users. The result is product support information that is easier to understand, providing increased readiness for your mission critical equipment.

Q: What capability gaps are you able to fill and which industry colleagues would you like to know about them?

A: Complying with military product support specifications can be a tedious and expensive process. Many equipment manufacturers would prefer to place primary focus on their products and not on the data specifications that come along with selling equipment to the military. ONEIL's proven processes combined with our decades of experience in developing product support information to comply with stringent military specifications lets equipment manufacturers focus on building the best equipment to support the nation's warfighters. ONEIL produces top-quality technical manuals, IETMs, and provisioning, as well as a full range of solutions including interactive schematics and diagnostics software to maximize mission-critical equipment performance before and after it's fielded.

Q: What are you most proud of?

A: ONEIL is 100% employee owned. At ONEIL, we take pride in our work quality, our work ethic, and our work structure. We've known for quite some time that employee ownership positively impacts communities and families in ways other ownership structures cannot. The structure showcases the value we place on our people, and it's a large part of why our team takes such pride in ONEIL's solutions and reputation as an industry leader in product support information.

Capabilities

Product Support, Technical Manuals, IETMs, Provisioning/Parts, Logistics, Training/eLearning, Software Solutions, Mil-Spec Compliance, Data Conversion, Validation, Verification, Life Cycle Management